THE FIRE.

Several thoughts are suggested to us by the confingration of Saturday morning. When the fire steamer was purchased sometime since, many persons thought and said that the expense was useless ; that there being no water, the engine was simply an ornament to the department, &c. Now it is an accepted fact that without the constant and tireless stream from that steamer on Saturday night, the fairest business lock of our city would have been a heap of ruins and $150,000 would not the best advertising mediums, &c.' have covered the loss.

Death of Dr. Boyce.

Rev. James P. Boyce, D. D., President of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky., and one of the most distinguished divines of the Baptist Church, died at Pau, France, December 28, 1888. Dr. Boyce left Louisville last August for a two year's trip abroad to recruit his shattered health His wife and three daughters accompanied him. For several weeks past his health has rapidly failed, so that his death was not unexpected. His remains will be brought to Louisville for interment.
