

Some Art Works in Charleston.

Many of our Southern cities are repositories of inherited art treasures of which comparatively few are aware.

The State of South Carolina has always been from its earliest history a liberal patron of the arts.

Here is a full length picture of Washington by Trumbull, which is considered one of the most interesting portraits of the "Father of his Country."

Trumbull was employed by Congress to execute four pictures to fill compartments in the rotunda of the capitol, each 12x18 feet.

The exquisite miniature of Lafayette, the work of Charles Fraser, was presented by him to the city, and is considered one of his happiest efforts.

The portrait of Andrew Jackson by Vanderlyn. President Monroe, by S. F. B. Morse, was presented to the city by that artist while his studio was in Charleston.

An interesting picture of the Volunteer Firemen of Charleston in 1838, was painted by Meyer, a German artist.

Probably the largest private collection of paintings and bric-a-brac in South Carolina is that of Dr. C. C. Manigault, President of the Carolina Art Association.

The picture is an interior, showing Rome in the distance through an open door. Against a dark red drapery the figures stand out well in relief.

Mr. Izard sits at the left of a table, bland and dignified, and Mrs. Izard at the right, holding in her hand a sketch which she has just finished.

This picture is especially noteworthy as showing the very rapid strides which Copley made, from a Colonial artist to the very front rank of a London portrait painter.

There are two graceful heads by Gilbert Stuart of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stuart whose delicate and fastidious genius threw such a subtle grace over all his pictures and endowed his men and women with so much dignity, stateliness and courtly grace.

give sixty to one hundred grains of calomel and fifty grains of quinine at one to two hours intervals until one hundred and fifty or two hundred grains have been taken.

Stanton and Lincoln.

Mr. Dana Describes the Evening After Lincoln's Second Election.

Sunday's New York Sun contained the following editorial by Mr. Dana: "In the last number of the Century Magazine Messrs. May and Nicolay narrate their idea of what happened at the War Department on the evening after the second election of President Lincoln in 1864.

"I was not usually on duty in the War Department at night; but Mr. Stanton had directed me to come over that evening, and I arrived pretty early, say at 8 o'clock or half past 8.

The President apparently as serene as a summer morning, was in Mr. Stanton's large private room, and no one was with him except the Secretary and General Eckert, who came continually with telegrams.

"Yes," said Mr. Lincoln, that's so; but that is not the whole. Pull up your chair and listen." I drew up to him, and he began to read aloud to me only and not to Stanton, one after another of Petrolu's funny bits; and between each of them he had a quiet little laugh all to ourselves.

"While he was thus engaged Mr. Stanton motioned to me to come with him into General Eckert's room, and when the door was shut he broke out in a fit of rage.

"This fiery speech of the enraged Secretary was interrupted by General Eckert, who had another telegram which he showed to him, and with which we all went back into Mr. Stanton's own office, in order that the President might see it.

"Hardly had he begun to read it, however, when a new occasion of irritation arose. The messenger brought in a card and handed it to the President, who said to me, as he passed the card over to the Secretary, 'Show him in!'"

"Stanton read it and turning to me, exclaimed in a low voice: 'God in heaven, it is Whiteleaf Reid!'"

"These incidents of a memorable historical event are not recorded in any annals of the time that I have seen; and yet they appear to me interesting and characteristic enough not to be forgotten."

them, or the states must be deprived of that proportion of their representation in Congress. (Uproarious applause.)

The Johnstown Flood.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 24.—A new directory of Johnstown has just been published. At the time of the flood the whole edition, which was in a book binding house was lost.

One of the things noted is that of ninety-five saloons and liquor dealers in the flooded districts all but six were completely wiped out, and in those remaining the stock was destroyed, so that there was in fact a total destruction by water.

The body of another child was taken out to-day, but only the bones were found. One of the temporary bridges gave way again to-day and it is feared that something may have to be done yet before the permanent structures are erected, although steps are being taken to build several solid bridges soon.

Startling Figures.

The New York Herald quotes from the neighbor, Science, a mathematical calculation of the prospective population of this country one hundred years from now, which is very interesting.

In the course of its argument some statistics of the past are given, and they are well worth looking over. For instance our population in 1750 was 1,260,000. At the end of thirty years, in 1780, it had reached 2,945,000.

At the end of thirty years more, in 1810, it stood at 7,239,881. In the course of another generation, or in 1840, it was 17,069,453. At the present time the figures run up to the neighborhood of 65,000,000.

A DUTY TO YOURSELF.

It is surprising that people will use a common, ordinary pill when they can secure a valuable English one for the same money.

PEOPLE EVERYWHERE.

Confirm our statement when we say that Acker's English Remedy is in every way superior to any and all other preparations for the Throat and Lungs.

CAUTION TO MOTHERS.

Every mother is cautioned against giving her child laudanum or paregoric; it creates an unnatural craving for stimulants which kills the mind of the child.
