Columbia Aroused About Railroads.

The report of the special committee, Aldermen Allworden, Fisher and Green, who are to report on the petition filed by Mr. Lyles, that the Council take some action looking to the bringing of the Southbound road to Columbia, is waited for with anxiety. The matter is and determination. Enterprising Sum- hoped the people of Georgetown will ter is not waiting, but months ago made take him at his word, and send Josiah most favorable propositions for the road | Doar to a back seat for a while .- Palto be taken there, and unless Columbia | metto Post. moves with vigor and equals or excells through Sumter, with its Northern connections in the East and South will hem us in. Then our progress will be slow to what it otherwise would have been. and those who are entrusted with advancing the interests of the city will be to blame. Railroads are not built in a day, nor are they destroyed in a day, but when built they form lines of travel that never cease. So opportunities lost to a city in this way are lost irrevocably. If Columbia does not get this Southbound road now she will never have the opportunity of getting another road to do the same good to the city.

A glance at your map will show you what a bend the Charlotte, Columbia and Augusta makes to get to Columbia. The Columbia and Greenville is but a north of us. The Columbia, Newberry and Laurens will do us like work, and the Atlantic Coast Line has another branch road into Columbia, while the Old Reliable is merely a road for local travel. With the completion of the Georgia, Carolina and Northern, and the building of the Southbound to Sumsame ills that afflict Charleston, Georgetown and numbers of other places most severely .- Columbia Record, July 24.
