Proceedings of Court.

The court of General Sessions convened on Monday at 10 o'clock a. m. with Hon. F. E. Frazer, presiding. Next on the calendar was, in remembrance of the law, and officers were present in their places, and the Judge charged the Grand Jury briefly, substantially as follows: That being the third time that you have been called to give. Our duty is to administer and not reform the law. He went on to say that it was their part to supervise the officers, and to see that the officers of the law properly administered. If there were any charges to be made it was incumbent on them to prefer them. It was a duty to themselves, the County and officers that they should be punished or exonerated as the case might be. He had heard no special charges. He refrained from giving them any particular definitions of the law. Not being lawyers, he said, they would not be likely to remember them. It would be their duty, in considering indictments to see that prima facie cases were made out. After a few remarks upon their general duty, His Honor turned them over to the Solicitor. The State vs. William Wilson—House breaking and larceny. Prisoner pleaded guilty. The State vs. Charlie McCall—Larceny from field. Prisoner pleaded guilty. The State vs. Joe Cowart—Stealing corn from the field. Verdict not guilty. The following on Tuesday: The State vs. Stagers Thompson—Assault with intent to kill. Verdict not guilty. The State vs. Nelson Smothers—Grand larceny. Verdict not guilty. The following on Wednesday: The State vs. Frank Dinkins and Smart Stewart—For the murder of Julia Ann Stewart was called—and the prisoner having been arraigned on Monday the trial was proceeded with. Smart and Johnson set up the plea of insanity, an examination was made before M. Reynolds, Trial Justice, by Drs. China and Baker. Look here! The Sumter Book and Novelty Co. have purchased an immense line of School Books, Blank Books, Fine Stationery, &c., which they are selling at prices that will please everybody.

The Palace Dry Goods Emporium.

The establishment of Schwartz Bros. is one of the shining centres of Sumter. The eye of the passer-by is immediately attracted by the handsome display of goods in the large show windows and the attraction is enhanced on entering the store. They are occupying the entire 2d story of their building which they have had last week getting under way. It has established one of the handsomest carpet rooms in the South. There is in their large and varied stock everything to please the most fastidious of the daughters of earth. All "Fancy Millinery" is invited especially into the Millinery Parlor. Mr. C. C. Wilson, the advance agent of the Carolina Southern R. R., passed through this place last week getting under way along the line through which this road is to run. He informed your correspondent that work would commence pretty soon now. He was looking around at this place for a location for a depot.—Cypress Correspondent Darlington News.

"My Wife Objects."

Well, what of it? Does her objection to your taking a policy of life insurance reflect on you of your duty in the premises? Suppose in some strange way of reason she should "object" to your paying anything for the support of the Gospel; for the education of your children; for a good family newspaper; for your calling a physician if she or one of the children was dangerously ill; for your putting something in a savings bank; for your providing suitable clothing and food for your household—would all these "objections" affect your duty as a husband and father of a family? Many a mistaken wife has "objected" to her husband providing the comforts and conveniences of life, and when he, the breadwinner, was unexpectedly called from earth, has found herself and children dependent upon humiliating charity. If your wife does "object," your duty still remains to provide for the future support of your family—the education and comfort of its members. Go at once to the Agent of the Penn Mutual Life of Philadelphia, apply for such an amount as you feel you ought to leave your family; when the policy is received put it in your safe or other depository of value; pay your premiums promptly and have the continuing security and satisfaction of a duty done. Under most favorable circumstances it will be a long time before the claim of your life policy will mature. Then when your business papers are examined, and perhaps unexpectedly is found that valuable policy of life insurance; and when the representative of the Company tenders his check in payment of the full amount, be assured your children will bless your memory and the bereaved widow will not then "object." For any information apply to A. C. Phelps, Agent, Sumter, S. C. Joseph S. Bean, Gen'l Agent, Augusta, Ga. Plastico, mixed with a little water makes a splendid substitute for Kalsomine or wall paper. For sale by Galliard & Leoni.
