business can hardly be said to be ple "Then shall the earth yield person in the State. When the dis | shall bless us " pensary law was first adopted, thousands of our honest people hoped for, and expected much from it.

They were told that the restrictive features of the law would be enforced by sober 'State officials, who. not having any financial interest at stake, would labor to reduce the consumption of liquor and make the dispensary system a stepping stone to prohibitition. The Dispensary had been in operation but a short time before the greed of gold begun to manifest itself among high officials, and pressure was brought to bear upon dispensers to increase sales. The annual salary paid a common county dispenser would buy thirty bales of cotton, and he was given to understand that his dispensary must be profitable to the State or it would be closed and himself dismissed from the service. The sales increased at once and have increased month by month ever since; so that today the State is selling nearly as much liquor as ever did the old barrooms in their palmiest days.

And how could it be otherwise? The appetite for drink is the same and every hindrance to the sale of liquor has been swept away. The door of the dispensary stands wide open to knowledge of the purchaser necesmuch as you can carry, if you like
