A Review of the Situation at Liao

They Have Been Defeated and Where the Largest Armies in Modern History Are Locked in a Desperate Struggle.

> The Carnage Has Been Awful and the Fight Continues Day After Day.

St. Petersburg, September 2,-(1.26 a. m.)-The news of the occupation of Liao Yang and the withdrawal of the Russian army to the right bank of the Taitse River reach- Japanese were unable to bring the ed only a small section of the people of St. Petersburg at a late hour and caused intense exitement and disappointment. The majority of the inhabitants retired to rest believing that 6 o'clock on the evening of August 31, Russian arms had again been success- and immediately gave orders for his ful and that the Japanese attacks had men to fall back on the outer posibeen repulsed. Ugly suspicions, however, had been rife during the day owing to the absence of press telegrams from Liao Yang, leading to the belief that the communications had been cut by Gen. Kuroki.

The following systement was obtain.

The following statement was obtain-'ed from the war office at 10 o'clock Thursday night:

"Gen. Kuroki's army crossed in force to the right bank of the Taitse River and it therefore became necessary for the Russians to be in a posi-tion to repel a blow in this direction.

"In view of this development in the operation Gen. Kuropatkin decided to abandon his position on the left bank and to concentrate his whole army on the other side of the river. This position is the strongest both in character and in site. The great issue will be finally decided there.

"By withdrawing to this position

The Japanese took positions. The Russian General, Kro- advantage of this to occupy the city, ing continued until late at night. still before them unless Gen. Kuroagain fall back to the northward. It are all in his favor, it is believed now that he has the Japanese divided by the river, thus effectually turning the tables upon his foe.

The determined pursuit by the Japanese of the Russian outposts when Gen. Kuropatkin gave the first order to withdraw was probably due to their anxiety to keep the Russians south of Liao Yang until Gen. Kuroki should be able to strike from the northeast. Gen. Kuropatkin, however, saw the trap and cleverly avoided it.

The Japanese repeated the atempt to throw pontoons across the Taitse near Liao Yang during the night of August 31, again under cover of a bombardment, and this attempt is believed to have been successful. Severe fighting may, therefore, be expected immediately northeast of the city.

The action of the Japanese commander in throwing a force across the river in the face of a strong enemy is considered to be extremely rash, and the position of this force, isolated from the main Japanese army by a deep river may easily become desper-

The fighting at Liso Yang has beaten all records for the desperate valor of the assailants and the invincible stubbornness of the defenders. The whole bistory of warfare tells of no such bembardments, no such carnage and no such persistence. Day after day the fight has been resumed at daybreak and kept up with hardly a moments' intermission until after nightfall.

War scarred veterans scarce believe the stories which come from the seat of war, and declare that it is beyond human endurance for an army to fight without respite for a whole week, each day of which has exceeded its predecessor in intensity of strugle and arnival of slaughter. Day after day the thousands of dead bestrewing the battlefield have to be removed. The Japanese have invented new methods to incinerate the heaps of dead, comrades removing the ashes for the honors of burial in Japan. The wounded present a most serious problem as they tax the transport capacity of both sides to the uttermost. The most difficult problem, however, is the bringing up of supplies of food and ammunition to every point of the fighting line which extends from ten to twenty miles.

Never has such a bombardment been known. An eyewitness of the battle of Vafangow told a correspondent that many officers suffered nervous prostration owing to the terrible roar of the artillery, and one military attache had to be invalided home for the same reason. Yet the artillery fire at Vafangow was far inferior in intensity

nications are open.

According to a dispatch from Liao Yang, Gen. Kuroki made his first attempt to cross the Taitse River late in the evening under cover of a heavy bombardment of the extreme Russian left. The Japanese artillery, which had been firing uninterruptedly for fourteen hours that day, ceased about 9 o'clock, and then suddenly reopened about 11 o'clock to conceal Kuroki's preparations for crossing the river. These preparations necessitated the establishment of a pontoon bridge, as the river was not fordable lower than Sakankankwantun, and the pontoons must have been floated down the

The efforts of the Japanse to cross the river on August 20 were not successful, and Gen. Kuroki, therefore. ordered a portion of his army to ford it at Sakankanwantun.

Gen. Kuropatkin was unable to prevent the passage of the river owing to the distance from Lia Yang, about 20 miles, but for the same reason the forces which gained the right bank immediately into action.

Kuropatkin heard of the passage of the Tintse at Sakaukanwangtun after
