Indigestion Causes Catarrh of the Stomach.

For many years it has been supposed that Catarrh of the Stomach caused indigestion and dyspepsia, but the truth is exactly the opposite. Indigestion causes catarrh. Repeated attacks of indigestion inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach and expose the nerves of the stomach, thus causing the glands to secrete mucus instead of the juices of natural digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

relieves all inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the stomach, protects the nerves, and cures bad breath, sour risings, a sense of fullness after eating, indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles.

Juvenile Beasts of Burden.

There is no proper punishment for the Wisconsin farmer who hitched four of his children to a plow and made them do the work of a horse. This man belongs to a special class of criminals. Yet his case cannot be treated with necessary severity. To send him to jail for his cruelty would impose an even greater punishment upon his family. The court authorities of the county have compromised by compelling the man to send his children to school and to pledge himself never again to hitch the youngsters to do the work of animals.

Over in the European countries women and children are often to be seen doing duty as beasts of burden, and occasionally some of the immigrants have mistakenly thought they could pursue the same method on coming here. The public opinion is strongly set against this form of brutality and will never condone such offenses whatever the circumstances. If a man is too poor to own a horse he ought himself to bear the brunt of the hard labor necessary to break up the soil. This Wisconsin farmer might easily have done alone as much as the four children he harnessed to the plow.

The demand of the day is for the education of the children, and every child that is kept in harness, whether on the farm in actual straps and task, is being defrauded of that which belongs to it by right. Child labor of any sort which interferes with the full moral and mental development of the individual is vicious and demoralizing, not only to the child but to a large circle in each community. A child kept out of school in order to toil at some pittance-earning work is a loss to the social organization. It cannot become a productive member or hope to rise above a certain low level.

The case of the Wisconsin farmer should serve to stimulate congress to the early passage of a bill which regulates child labor in the district. There are many youngsters hitched to the plows right here in the capital of the United States.—Washington Star.

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

Pennsylvania Republicans Endorse Everything That Is Likely to Find Public Favor and Make Votes.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 6.—The principal features of the Republican platform read at the state convention today were:

Endorsement of the administration of President Roosevelt, giving full credit to the managers of the great industrial enterprises for their splendid achievements, but condemning those who have misused their powers by unfair methods of competition, publicity of corporate affairs, approves railroad rate bill, commends legislation pending in congress providing for the rigid examination of meat products, declares devotion to Republican doctrine of protection of American industries, urges farther amendment of immigration laws, so that undesirable foreign element may be excluded from American citizenship, and acknowledges debt of gratitude to sailors and soldiers who fought in the war of country and commends pensions granted them.

The Farm for Boys.

A prominent Georgia citizen, in a speech delivered to a body of traveling men of the State, directed attention to the prosperity of the people of Georgia, and emphasized the fact that "the farmer is more independent than a king." He said: "The boys of the farmers are content to remain at home and learn to till the soil. They have quit rushing off to the towns in search of clerical positions. They are staying at home helping to develop the greatest country on earth." This is indeed an encouraging report from Georgia.

Commenting upon what has been quoted above, the Savannah Press says:

"The farmers' boys who are far wiser than those who are hunting easy jobs in the town. With cotton bringing 11 cents a pound there is more money to be had in the country than in the cities. All of the young farmers who are at all thrifty are becoming financially independent. If the present good times continue they will be classed as rich men in their respective communities by the time they are 40 years of age."

This condition of the farmer's boy is not confined to any one State, but prevails all over the south. The boy who leaves the farm nowadays for work in the city should consider well before changing his environments. The paper already quoted inquires about the boys who have already gone to the cities, asking this question: "And how has it fared with the boys who have sought jobs in the cities?"

This answer is given:

"Now and then one of exceptional ability has made a success. The vast majority, however, are no better off than when they left their homes on the farms. They are still earning small salaries and find it difficult to meet all the demands on their purses. And the future doesn't hold out a promise of prosperity. If they have married they are having a hard struggle for the necessities of life. Doubtless the most of them have wished a thousand times they had stayed on the farm. Indeed, it is not uncommon to hear young men in this city who left the farm a dozen or half a dozen years ago say that if cotton continues to command the present price they will go back to the country and to farming."

"It is a difficult matter to get a foothold in the cities. Opportunities for advancement are few and far between. A boy leaving the farm for a clerical position, or, in fact, any other position in the city, thinks at first that he has made a change for the better. He believes he will not have to work so hard and that the road to fortune is easier. In a very few months he changes his opinion. The worry and annoyances he has to endure and the difficulty of earning sufficient to enable him to secure a social position to which he feels he is entitled make him realize that he left contentment and independence behind him when he left the farm."

This is a subject which interests hundreds, even thousands, of young men. The times have undergone a great change. The farm is not the uninviting, unattractive field for ambitious, thrifty young men that it was ten, or even five years ago.

SHORTER HOURS IN MILLS.

Mill Presidents, Representing More Than Two-Thirds of the Spindles in This State, Resolve to Shorten Hours Gradually to Ten Hours a Day.

Greenville, S. C., June 5.—A conference most important in its bearings on the industrial progress of South Carolina was held today in Greenville at the room of the board of trade. There were present 73 cotton mill presidents, representing 2,335,000 spindles in operation in South Carolina, or more than two-thirds of the spindles of the state.

J. A. Brock, of Anderson, was made chairman, and J. I. Westervelt, of Greenville, secretary. Capt. E. A. Smyth, of Greenville, introduced a series of resolutions, which were referred to a committee, consisting of Capt. E. A. Smyth, chairman, Messrs. L. W. Parker, of Greenville; V. I. Montgomery, of Spartanburg; Thomas Barrett, Jr., of Augusta, Ga., who is president of the Langley mill in South Carolina, and Z. T. Wright, of Newberry. The conference then adjourned for an hour, while a collation was served by the mill officials of Greenville and their lady friends.

At the second session of the conference this resolution was offered by the committee and unanimously adopted, and the committee was appointed:

That a permanent organization be effected, and a committee to nominate officers be appointed for that purpose to report at a meeting to be held on June 28, at some point to be decided upon later.

The following important resolutions were also adopted without opposition:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this conference that the running time of the cotton mills in South Carolina be voluntarily reduced by the mill managers on July 1, 1906, to 64 hours per week, and on July 1, 1910, to 60 hours per week. The mill managers recognize that for many reasons it is best both for the employes and the corporation that this reduction to 60 hours should be gradual and extended over a period of years.

Resolved, That this conference urge upon all the cotton manufacturers in South Carolina to continue to carefully observe the age law limiting the employment of children to those of 12 years of age and older, and forbidding the employment, except under lawful conditions, of children under 12 years of age.

Resolved, That the conference of mill manufacturers earnestly approve the passage of the compulsory school law in South Carolina to apply to all children under twelve years of age, and also recommend the enactment of a law requiring the registration of all births in South Carolina, and also a law requiring marriage certificate before any ceremony can be performed in South Carolina.

Resolved, That the chairman of this conference appoint a committee of seven, who shall prepare a circular letter to be printed and placed on the desk of each senator and member of the house of representatives of the South Carolina legislature, urging upon them the enactment of these laws.

Resolved, That it is the judgment of this meeting that there should be no change made in the wages of the employes at this time consequent upon the change of hours so passed. Enabling thereby such operatives as work by the day to secure the same amount of wages for the shortened day as they would have secured for a longer day, it being the belief of the manufacturers here assembled that piece workers will be able to secure, through increased energy consequent upon the shortened hours of labor, the same amount of wages during the shorter time that they have previously earned. The name of the organization is the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of South Carolina.
