THE WATCHMAN AND SOUTHRON, APRIL 22, 1908.

Claichman and Southron. WEDNESOAY, APRIL 22, 1908.

Camildate O. B. Martin has develd a splenetic disposition that will enhance his reputation for polse common sense. The people of venom than with sense. We pre-Mr. Heyward is able to take care his record, and we have no is cause at this time. What we critiar and method of conducting his ign for an honorable and digraid be sent to the senate.

The Aldrich financial bill has been tid on the table by congress and it is that nothing more will be of this panaces for all the couna financial ills until after the presid election. The trusts desire no in the tariff or currency system while the Aldrich bill lacked of approximating real refrom in e currency system it contemplated that might eventually open way for the reforms demanded by be people at large.

Dr. Walter Cheyne's suggestion that constitution be amended so that wit coroners may be elected ind of county coroners and that only cians shall be chosen to fill these a is impractical and would not mplish the desired end. His arguit in support of his suggestion conas, however, much that is true. The conditions he complains of exist in any counties and there have been frequent miscarriages of justice for want of a proper investigation the crime was committed. His ent is mis-applied and the remprescribed will not afford relief. ant is needed, in our opinion, is a tor to each county whose duty it I be to attend all inquests, exall witnesses and inake a full searching investigation without y. Superintendent of Education Discusses Ex-Gov. Heyward's Interview and Outlines His Policy for the Campaign,

MR. MARTIN'S REJOINDER.

Columbia, April 20.-Mr. O. B. Marth Carolina are not apt to fall over | tin today followed up his little contreives to vote for a man who temps of Saturday with ex-Governnor to be more liberally endowed D. C. Heyward. He gave out this afternoon the following statement, discursing the rejoinder of Mr. Heyward maelf when he is challenged to to his Baptist Courier letter, and outlining the attitude which he proposes nor the intention to champion to maintain on the stump this summer. Mr. Martin pleads not guilty to and disapprove of is Mr. Martin's the charge of mud-slinging, and intimates that if his letter of last week constituted mud-slinging, there's likeof office. Had we nover heard of ly to be a good deal of it during the Sr. Martin before, his letter to the approaching campaign. Mr. Martin stist Courier would be sufficient to also explains that his letter last week nes us that some other man was not written in a spirit of anger of of bitterness, saying: "I am amused that some newspapers seem to think that I get mad every time I write a simple little epistile in ordinary language."

> The statement handed out today is as follows:

"There are a few small matters in ex-Gov. Heyward's interview which I wish to note in order to keep the record straight. I did not know about the testimony as to his method of conducting his gubernatorial campaign in Spartanburg county when I pronounced the little eulogy upon him last summer. I missed that testimony somehow if it was ever published. My attention was called to it soon after ex-Gov. Heyward's announcement. Since I know about the testimony I do not feel called upon to withdraw any complimentary remarks in regard to his courtesy and our relations while we were fellow officers in the capitol. Governor Heyward says that he is 'surprised and sorry that Mr. Martin has soon fit to begin the mud-slinging in the senatorial campaign." That's funny. If there is any mud in my letter it is of his own mixing, for it all came from his own play-house. I/was very particular to adhere strictly to the testimony before the investigating committee, and I spoke from my own knowledge in regard to Governor Heyward being a post-mortem candidate. In his announcement for the senate ex-Governor Heyward invited consideration of his record. I simply took him at his word. I think the time was opportune to say something about the use of money in elections. I do not think that it is right or legitimate to put a fellew in charge of a campaign in a county and give him liberty and license to draw upon a sympathetic banker for funds to use in an election. The responsibility cannot be shifted in such cases. It must rest with the principal. I propose to denounce the use of money in this way. It is entirely appropriate for me to inject this issue in order to try to prevent just such things as men swore occurred in Spartanburg. I long ago adopted the principle, "when you, are right you cannot be too vigorous, when you are wrong you cannot be too careful." "I shall be free to discuss any man's public record, and to debate any question bearing upon this race, but that man may have the satisfaction of knowing that I shall confine myself to the record and truth. If I differ with Governor Heyward upon some of his public acts in regard to immigration, for instance, I certainly ought to be able to quote his record without "throwing mud." If my position on currency reform should not agree with that of the president of the Columbia Savings Bank and Trust company then I must not be denied that privilege of free debate. "I am amused that some newspapers seem to think that I get mad every time I write a simple little epistle in ordinary language. No, I don't get mad. It is not ire. I have a lot of fun every time. Why, I enjoy it. If I can roll a ball of truth and knock down a bunch of political ten pins, it tickles me to see them fall. "I want to say, here and now, that political prophets, who have nothing else to do shall not decide the coming election before the campaign opens and while those who are really going to do the voting are busy at work. "It wish to say also that the man who is elected to represent the State of South O'Donnell, was before Gov. Ansel in Carolina in the United States senate will get, during the coming campaign, enough intellectual drill, parliamentary training and forensic gymnasticto aid him materially in his subsequent career.
