The Recorder's Court.

Willie Smith, disorderly conduct, was given a sentence of $2 or four days. He took the dollars.

W. S. Atkinson, charged with carrying on a business without a license was required to pay the license and a penalty of $1.

Joe Taylor was before the Recorder for carrying a concealed weapon, the weapon being a dangerous looking pair of brass knucks. Joe said he had "found them," and was on his way home when arrested by Officer Ward. As Joe plead guilty, the Recorder gave him the light sentence of $10 or 25 days. He paid his fine.

The work on the postoffice building is nearing completion and the contractor has commenced putting down the curbing and laying the foundation for the concrete pavement in front of the building. The point has now been reached where a decision should be reached as to the disposition to be made of the trees that partially block the sidewalk. When the other trees on South Main street were removed, so that the concrete sidewalk could be laid, these trees in front of the postoffice building were left, some citizens claiming that they should not be removed at all, others saying that they came under the jurisdiction of the government and the city authorities should be hands off. The old Tree and Park Commission did issue an order for the removal of the trees, but before the order was carried out a new commission was elected, and the removal order was suspended. There is no doubt about the trees being in the way and render it impossible to have a good sidewalk. If one of them should be blown down against the postoffice considerable damage would result. That there is a possibility of one of these trees being blown down is not imaginary was proven only a few weeks ago when another of the trees that had been left was up-rooted by a stiff breeze. The controversy over the removal of these trees has been going on for several months and appears to be no nearer a settlement than it was at the outset. The best and most reasonable solution of the problem would be to turn it over to the government and if its representatives decide that the removal of the trees is necessary to the safety of the postoffice building they will remove them, but if the trees can be preserved they will remain as they are, for it is the policy of the government to preserve and protect shade trees whenever and wherever possible.

The case is an interesting one, involving a dispute between M. H. Beck and the Northwestern Railroad Co., Beck claiming that the railroad company are digging dirt on his land, and the railroad company asserting that they are digging it on their own right-of-way.

Mr. Beck is being represented by L. D. Jennings, and the Northwestern Railroad Co. by Lee and Moise, and Purdy and Bland.
