...the administration of Mr. ...

...the permanent paving going on now ...

...which North Main street, from Warren street to the city limits as this main avenue is ridiculously narrow from Warren street on to the city limits.

...Last Saturday morning Mr. Moine called on Secretary Reardon and talked the matter over again attempting to widen North Main street. The two went out and interviewed property owners on the east side of this thoroughfare, and the secretary went back with a deed to be signed by the property owners donating twenty feet of land for widening purposes. A number have signed and the effort to widen this street is progressing today with what is considered very bright prospects of succeeding, but with no absolute certainty.

...Broad street have requested the Chamber of Commerce to have the secretary try to induce the property owners on both sides of this important avenue to donate land for widening purposes. Secretary Reardon said today that he would immediately begin a canvass of the property owners of this street as soon as City Council says go ahead and the city engineering department gets out a statement of the number of feet of frontage needed. If the citizens on Broad street want their street widened, or on any other street needing widening, all they have to do is get busy saying so, and promising to cooperate with the Chamber of Commerce. Then the effort will be made, but there must be some tangible cooperation on the part of property owners. The Chamber of Commerce will do its full part, and the City Council will doubtless do their part, but the property owners must help out and do some work and talking too.

...Narrow streets are a drawback to any progressive city. They interfere seriously with the prospects of getting a street railway system, they mar the beauty of a town, and are dangerous besides to necessarily congesting traffic.

...Sumter has long since outgrown its swaddling clothes, it has assumed city ways, and the increased business and traffic demand wider streets than it has in many instances.

...Therefore the Chamber of Commerce is ready to make one last appeal to the property owners for wider streets. It will be too late, entirely, and hopelessly late, to widen or talk about widening narrow streets after the city has expended many thousands of dollars permanently paving, draining and putting down permanent water main connections, and sewer connections in these narrow "alleys," as some of our prominent thoroughfares are called.

...Now is the accepted time. We have a progressive set of business men on our city council who will meet progressiveness face to face and do business with progressive property owners.

...When some of the narrow streets are widened before paving, (and there will be some of them widened before being paved) those citizens living on the same old narrow "alleys" are going to regret that they didn't take advantage of the opportunity now being offered by the Chamber of Commerce to improve property values, living conditions, and beautifying of their streets, after they see what an improvement has been made by widening other former "alleys." Now is the time to wake up. Later will be too late.

Rotation of Crops to Prevent Disease.

"Rotation of crops is as important in growing vegetables as in growing field crops, and the same principles can be applied. Crop rotation is important in checking diseases and insects and in keeping the soil in good condition. Where diseases are very severe, the same crop should not be planted continuously on the same area. Rotation of crops is one of the safeguards against soil infection. Land upon which a diseased crop has been grown should not be used for the same or a closely related crop often than once in three years. It is usually advisable to rotate crops in such a way that foliage (such as cabbage, kale, spinach, and mustard) follow root crops (Irish potatoes, beets, parsnips, carrots, etc.) or those grown for fruits (tomatoes, peppers, melons, etc.) This can be accomplished in a measure by changing the location of crops in the planting plan or by reversing the plan from year to year." The same applies to rotation
