ent, arose in a body, and to the sound of the rain on the metal roof above, they sang "America" with faces aglow, betraying their gratefulness for such an hour. Prayer by the teacher was followed by readings, compositions, and written lessons, by the pupils, among them those who did not know the alphabet two months ago. A letter composed and written by one of these pupils, to Miss Will Lou Gray, State supervisor of adult schools, Columbia, S. C., telling her of adult school work at Britton, Sumter county, S. C., was read and deserves special mention. After attendance buttons were awarded to two, who had not missed a night, for five nights in each week for two months, a delightful salad course, and coffee were served to all present.

Many expressions of appreciation were tendered the efficient teacher, Mrs. David Britton, who with untiring effort, labored to organize this school two months ago, and began with an enrollment of thirteen pupils. Mrs. Britton deserves much credit in this noble work for her faithfulness and patience with the interest of each pupil at heart, which was crowned with success. We are sure those who went out from this school Friday night, went prepared to be better men and women, and better citizens for grasping the opportunity of the past two months. School will open again August the first.

To Wage War Against Selling Extracts

Bishopville, March 14—A mass meeting of women of Lee county was held at the court house at 4 o'clock this afternoon and was largely attended. The purpose of the meeting is to organize and wage a war against the sale of drugs and extracts for beverage purposes. Plans were made and thoroughly discussed. Another meeting will be held Wednesday of next week.

A Big Difference

A little girl had a dog, "Paddie," to which she was greatly devoted. One day the dog died and her mother hesitated to tell her daughter the sad news, but finally mustered up enough courage. "Helen, dear," she said, "I am awfully sorry to tell you, but Paddie's dead."

The little girl, went on playing as if nothing had happened or she did not care. An hour or two later she came running into the house crying as if her heart would break, telling her mother that Paddie was dead.

"Why, I told you that a good while ago," her mother said. "Oh, I thought you said 'Paddie's dead,'" replied the sobbing child.—Selected.

FARMERS GAIN $10.00 A BALE

Texas Farmer Tells of Results of Cooperative Marketing Association

Columbia, March 16.—Contracts representing over 6,000 bales of cotton were received today at the offices of the South Carolina Cotton Growers' Cooperative Association. Lee county sent in 4,951 bales, sending the total number signed in that county to 5,488 and J. P. Quinberry is having the active assistance of Thomas G. McLeod, county chairman.

Three counties, Marlboro, Darlington and Sumter, have already signed considerably over 50,000 bales, one-eighth of the quota for the whole state, officials of the state association said last night. E. W. Evans, county chairman for Marlboro county, says he expects to sign 40,000 bales or one-tenth of the state's quota in Marlboro county. If all other counties maintain the pace of these Pee Dee counties the state will go far beyond its quota.

"South Carolina farmers can gain from $10 to $15 and more on each bale of cotton just as I have done in Texas," declares J. D. Goghan of Ennis, Texas, in a letter to R. C. Hamer, chairman of the campaign committee of the association. Mr. Hamer is endeavoring to have Mr. Goghan, who is a well known Texas farmer, come to South Carolina and tell the farmers of this state in speeches just what the Texas association has already done for him. Mr. Goghan grew more than 100 bales of cotton last year which he turned over to the Texas association.

"Don't let any one tell you that the Texas association has not been a great success," says Mr. Goghan in his letter. "It has done remarkably well and will do even better next year because being one of the first of the cotton cooperative selling associations to begin functioning, it of course had problems to solve which the other states will not have to solve. Under our plan cotton is being sold at its actual spinning value and is sold by the farmer himself. This is a thing that has never happened before in the history of the south."

The three members of the South Carolina delegation in the national house of representatives who grow cotton have signed the contract, it was announced yesterday. They are H. P. Fulmer of Orangeburg, W. F. Stevenson of Cheraw and John J. McSwain of Greenville.

WATKINS IS DIRECTOR

To Have Charge of Warehouses of Three States.

Raleigh, March 14.—T. C. Watkins of South Boston, Va., was made director of warehouses for the Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Marketing Association of Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina at the meeting of directors here today.

Mr. Watkins is vice president of the Boston National Bank of South Boston, Va., a large tobacco planter and a director of the largest cooperative marketing association in the United States. He is considered well qualified to manage the warehouses of the association to be used by its 60,000 members in three states.

The need for economic production; the importance of striving for quality rather than quantity, and the raising of home supplies as a first necessity to secure profit for members of the Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association was stressed in today's meeting of directors. Satisfactory progress in their survey of three states was reported by the committee on warehouses who report good prospects of securing adequate warehousing and other mechanical facilities.

The Story in One Word: Fish.

In late years mining, stock-raising, the manufacture of wood-pulp and news print paper, and a number of other industries have been developed in Newfoundland, but throughout its more than 400 years of history the main story of the island might be told in one word: fish. Boston and Massachusetts have felt deeply indebted to their "sacred cod," but after all that important creature came from the Newfoundland bank; and how ever valuable it has been to New England, it has meant much more to Newfoundland and through Newfoundland to Great Britain.

"A good case could even be made for the cod as claimant for a place on the British coat-of-arms; for that lowly fish in a way laid the foundation of the world-wide British Empire. Before the discovery of Newfoundland Britishers were of little import as seafarers. The great wealth of cod fish which John Cabot's finding of the island disclosed immediately drew the men of the British Isles out of their insularity.

"The next year after the discovery—1498—a fleet of Devon fishermen crossed the Atlantic and returned loaded down with fish; and from that time on for centuries the annual crossing and recrossing of the Atlantic took place. The British kings looked upon the voyages of thousands of men to and from Newfoundland as the best kind of training for seamen and deliberately discouraged the settlement of the island in order to perpetuate the fishing from a British base. Great Britain quickly became a seafaring nation; the navy grew; and with its growth the British Empire spread around the world.

"The Newfoundland of today has a government in general somewhat like that of Canada. It is not a crown colony but a self-governing, responsible colony with a governor-general appointed by the British king, a premier, and a parliament of two houses.

"Its educational system is unique. Neither the central government nor political divisions maintain public schools. Instead, religious denominations have charge of schools in proportion to their membership, and funds are furnished to these schools by the government. Practically the only educational activities of the government are in the laying out of studies and in the giving of examinations at stated periods.

Newfoundland: Corner-Stone of The British Empire

Washington D.C., Mar. 15.—Renewed discussion by the neighbors of the United States to the north of the desirability of Newfoundland's becoming part of the Dominion of Canada raises a point upon which probably many Americans are hazy—that there are two distinct British realms, not one, in the portion
