Interesting Courses For Women of Short Course

All of the more than seventy-five courses of the Winthrop Summer School are open to the women attending the short course, July 10-22, inclusive. While this is true, special courses have been arranged which will permit the group taking any one of these to complete some one phase of the work within the time given. Work will be offered in practically all the academic subjects: history, English, chemistry, psychology, etc. These courses will be planned with a view to meeting the needs of the women in the home. In addition to these courses several others will be offered, designed to prepare women to meet more effectively the ever increasing demands made upon them. As usual, there will be the course in citizenship. Miss Marie B. Ames, Field Agent for the National League of Women Voters, will have charge of this course. The regular summer school students have manifested such interest in this subject that it will be offered during the entire session of six weeks, and a special short course will be arranged as well. Miss Ames is not a stranger in the state, she having been brought here by the South Carolina League of Women Voters the summer of 1920. The course in public speaking which was enjoyed so much three years ago will be offered again this summer, for this short course, Miss Lillian Crane, who has charge of the department of expression in Winthrop College, will give this. Once again we are to have the privilege of having with us the eminent parliamentarian, Mrs. Emma A. Fox, who will give a course designed to aid in the conduct of meetings. This course, with that in public speaking and that in citizenship, form a fine training for the recent responsibilities assumed by women. Miss Ames will discuss in her class the plan of government, how it is conducted, some needed improvements; Miss Crane will endeavor to show what is necessary in order to speak well before an audience; and Mrs. Fox will lead the way of freedom, ease and accuracy in presiding over and conducting the business of an organized body. What is the cost of attendance upon these courses? To those in the state, it is the cost of board, nine dollars a week or two dollars a day for a period of shorter duration. Write Miss Lella A. Russell, Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C., for room reservation. Los Angeles, June 15.—Jess Willard, the former champion, in a statement published today by the Express, accused Jack Dempsey of "dodging," through his manager, Jack Kerns, a return match with Willard. Local sport-followers consider Willard's statement an open challenge to Dempsey. Hague, June 15.—All of Europe's hopes are centered today in the opening of the international conference which is dedicated to the task of making practical arrangements for the reentry of Russia into the concert of nations. American Army Service Artillery

Washington, June 7.—The American army came out of the war with a vast amount of artillery but still lacks the ideal types of guns and howitzers which a careful post-war study by army experts indicated to be the most desirable. On the basis of the report of the "caliber board," which made this study in 1918, however, existing artillery equipment has been apportioned among the troops to approximate as nearly as possible ideal conditions. One striking fact was developed by the "caliber board" study. Despite the enormous increase in the amount of artillery used by the contending armies, the board concluded that "the principles of the use of field artillery continued unchanged. Although the French coined the saying during the war that "The artillery conquers; the infantry occupies the ground," post-war studies do not confirm this in American military opinion which holds that the infantry armed with rifle and bayonet is the main line of the army and all other arms designed merely to aid the advance of the foot troops. As to the increased use of artillery during the war, Sir Douglas Haig, British commander, noted in after the war reports that while the proportion of British artillery personnel engaged in the battle of Somme was about 50 per cent of the infantry, it reached 80 per cent in the Battle of Ypres in 1917. In the 1916 struggle British guns hurled 14,000 tons of shell in a single day and in 1917 they poured 23,000 tons in the German positions in the same time. The caliber board found that for the purpose of American field operations there should be six types of weapons, a light weight gun and howitzer to accompany infantry divisions, a medium weight pair for corps use and a heavy team for each field army. The board found that for divisional use, a gun of about 3-inch caliber firing shells to "man killing characteristics" weighing not more than 20 pounds and with a maximum range of 15,000 yards, was "ideal," but that the American and French 75s, while not exactly filling requirements, formed a practical substitute. The army artillery as well as the National Guard field batteries are now equipped with these weapons supplemented by some American 3-inch guns. As a mate for this field gun, the board recommended a 3.65 mm. weapon with range of 10,000 yards and project of 30 to 35 pounds. That type does not exist in the army today although the 155 mm. howitzer suggested as a substitute is included and was for a time mated with the light field gun. It is regarded as too heavy for divisional use, however, and has been eliminated from divisional batteries. The lack of a light howitzer is due to the fact that the American army adopted French artillery equipment in the war and the French never were able to turn their attention to this weapon's production in the stress of other work. The British army is equipped with a 105 mm howitzer to support infantry operations. For medium batteries attached to army corps, the caliber board recommended 4.7 to 5 inch guns with range of 18,000 yards to bring hostile battery positions under fire. The existing 4.7 guns of old model, with one regiment armed with British 5-inch weapons, make up this element of the present American artillery strength, the guns being mated with the 10,000 yard range 155 mm. howitzer. For the heavy field artillery handled by units of the field army, the board selected a 155 mm. gun with 25,000 yard range and an 8-inch howitzer firing 18,000 yards. Equipment approximating this is made available by using British-design howitzers which are on hand. It is pointed out that under present national defense plans, most of the artillery for a major mobilization must come from the National Guard, which now includes 162 gun batteries armed with 75s; 36 howitzer batteries equipped with 155 m. m. weapons and 13 gun batteries armed with 155 m. m. rifles. Colonel J. H. Wharton Dies in Laurens. Laurens, June 14.—Col. John H. Wharton, one of the most prominent men of the county and widely known over the state as legislator and railroad commissioner, died today at his home at Waterloo, Laurens county. The funeral will be held at his home tomorrow afternoon. Colonel Wharton had been ill for more than a year, having suffered a breakdown followed by paralysis. He was 74 years of age and was a native of the county. A surplus of ex-wives and former husbands is reported.

MARKET NEWS

(Furnished by MacDowell & Co., 18 South Main St., Correspondents of H. & B. Beer, Members New York and New Orleans Cotton Exchanges.) Morning Cotton Letter. New Orleans, June 15.—Liverpool was due one point down on New Orleans about 3 lower on New York. Southern spots yesterday rather irregular, few shades higher, some shade lower, others unchanged, Dallas 5 up; middling there 2.60; sales at Dallas 833; all told 6,120 bales. Expect good exports from Galveston shortly, stock on shipboard there 75,000 at New Orleans 22,000 against 22,000. Germany likely take over 1,500,000 bales this season vs. 1,281,000 last year, Japan probably over 900,000 against 620,000 last season. England likely over 2,000,000 vs. 1,737,000. Season before last exports to the United Kingdom 3,069,000 indicating that Liverpool will need in the way of imports next season since British trade is improving. Spinners takings for week tomorrow probably be bullish as will run against only 130,000 last year, making it possible for visible American to show big decrease for week vs an increase last year of 16,000. Shorts may have the luck of being favored with good weather for a while longer, but on first sign of return of rain, will probably run like a deer. Attitude of Liverpool today and weather conditions likely dominate today's session. Meanwhile local large exporters have been good buyers of July, which is significant in connection with the small certificated stock here, only 15,000 bales. Sentiment rather divided for the present. Stanley on the Weather. Memphis, June 15.—No rainfall reported over belt up to midnight, highest temperatures average 90 to 98 over the belt. Highest in central Alabama. Thursday entire belt generally fair, continued warm. New Orleans.—Of last month's large consumption in U. S. which was 496,000 bales of lint vs. 441,000 last year, northern mills consumed 164,000 against 172,000, a splendid showing considering considering continuance of the New England strike, while southern mills appear to be running full time, having used last month 332,000 compared with 269,000 one year ago. Of the 5,452,000 bales exported from the U. S. August 1st to May 31st compared with 4,702,000 last season, the United Kingdom is credited with 1,519,000 vs. 1,515,000 France 672,000 vs. 516,000, Italy 375,000 vs. 448,000, Germany 1,273,000 vs. 536,000, other European 603,000 vs. 574,000, Japan 735,000 vs. 429,000, all other countries 275,000 vs. 234,000. Note.—Indications Germany may take this season over 1,500,000 vs. 1,281,000 last season and 443,000 season before last, coming back strong with England, recovering rapidly and Japan developing the far eastern trade in which it is making remarkable progress. All signs point to a big consumption by the world next season if the cotton is available whereas crop outlook is very unpromising owing early appearance of the weevil, belt wide and numerous. TRAINS NOT TO BE DISCONTINUED

Railroad Commission Orders Atlantic Coast Line to Continue the Columbia-Sumter Trains. It seems that trains Nos. 68 and 69 between Sumter and Columbia on the A. C. L. Railroad will not be discontinued for the present according to information received Thursday morning by the secretary of the Sumter Chamber of Commerce from Secretary Frank A. Pierson of the Columbia Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Pierson's letter is as follows: Dear Sir: We are pleased to note that you have taken up the matter of trains No. 68 and No. 69 with the railroad commission. Proposals have been made by the Columbia Chamber of Commerce and the Travelers' Protective Association. I am advised by the railroad commission that they have ordered the A. C. L. to continue those trains until further notice. A hearing will probably be held within two weeks and we trust that you will keep in touch with the commission and appear before the hearing. Respectfully yours, Frank A. Pierson, Secretary-Treasurer. Two public hearings were held during June, 1921, by the Sumter Chamber of Commerce and another hearing by the railroad commission also during June, 1921, regarding the question of discontinuing trains Nos. 68 and 69. The railroad commission reserved its decision and has never given any public notice to commercial and other organizations that the commission had approved of taking off those trains. The Columbia and Sumter Chambers of Commerce found that the traveling public did not want those trains taken off unless some satisfactory substitute schedule was provided to take the place of those trains. Train No. 69 arrives at Sumter at 5:50 p. m. and leaves for Columbia at 6:25 arriving Columbia at 8 p. m. Train No. 68 leaves Columbia about 8 a. m., arriving Sumter at 9:30 a. m. Tindal Man Dies. Mr. John W. Geddings of Tindal section passed away at eight o'clock in the evening Wednesday. Mr. Geddings was 62 years old and has been confined to his bed for a period of about six months. He will be buried Thursday at Bethel church at 4 p. m. Rev. Willie Haysworth will conduct the ceremony. Mr. Geddings is survived by his wife and four sons and three daughters.
