Geographical Unity.
There are two tremendous moments in crossing the United States from east to west by way of Chicago, Omaha and Ogden. The first is when the bluffs of the Missouri suddenly dwindle away and the prairie rolls into sight with its ocean of tall corn, islanded with embowered homesteads, as if one swelling movement of the sea had been divinely caught and petrified and made fertile. And the second of these significant moments, more majestically pregnant with hidden meanings than the naked glories of Niagara or the arrogant cliffs of Yosemite, is when the ravines of the Sierra Nevada, with their ever green beauty of pine trees, broaden out on the valley of Sacramento and the hills recede beyond that magnificent plain. There and then you realize the perpetual and indissoluble relation of highland to lowland and perceive in the United States a more wonderful geographical unity than you might behold anywhere in Europe, where there is more variety and less majestic space.—Percy Vincent Donovan in Sunset Magazine.

Thras Made Over.
It may be realized by purchasers of diamond thras and the like that styles in settings change almost as frequently as in a woman's hat, and every other year at least must see the precious diamond rebuilt. This adds to original cost, for no self respecting jeweler changes the setting of a costly piece of jewelry without adding a few new stones to the first amount, thereby increasing its value. Of course famous crowns, with associations attached, that have recently come into the possession of very rich Americans remain as first designed, for even an American shows some sentiment when it costs him a fortune to indulge in rich tortoise jewelry, but otherwise diamond and pearl and emerald thras are constantly made over.—Boston Herald.

The Call of the Wild.
Most of our song birds have three notes expressive of love, alarm and fellowship. The latter call seems to keep them in touch with one another. I might perhaps add to this list the scream of distress which most birds utter when caught by a cat or a hawk—the voice of uncontrolled terror and pain which is nearly the same in all species—dissent and piercing. The other notes and calls are characteristic, but this last is the simple scream of common terrified nature.—John Burroughs in Country Life in America.

No use his trying—Hammar is put together to stick when it's once applied. It was bad luck for him to go under that ladder, anyway—but nothing to the bad luck a painter dealer or painter must undergo with ordinary paints. Hammar paint is not ordinary. It is not a ready mixed paint. It is a product of its own class and character entirely. Long use and experimenting has proved beyond possible doubt that a combination of zinc with lead makes the finest paint on earth. Many ready mixed paints have that virtue, but they are too "finished"—the oil is in them. That should not be put in until the very day the paint is going to be applied. Every painter will tell you so and the only way to get the life of the oil from start to finish—is to put it into the paint yourself when you are ready to spread it. If you want the finest, freshest, strongest, farthest-spreading and longest-sticking paint on earth, you have to get Hammar Paint—the paint that stops at the right point—with the pigments and driers scientifically ground by machinery, and the oil left for you to put in. Call on of paint to gallon of oil, no more, no less—that's the whole story of paint satisfaction.
Hammar paint is guaranteed to stick and look well for five years; your money back if it doesn't. Drop in some day and let me show you how you can save 25% on the next bill of paint you buy.

HINDOOS AT TABLE.

The Higher Their Caste the More Irksome Become the Rules.
"In India," writes Sidney Low, "religion, with what seems a malign ingenuity, has occupied itself in heaping complications round the two essential functions of eating and marrying. The Hindoo cannot take his food without elaborate precautions against pollution, and the higher his caste is the more burdensome these rules are. There are some inferior castes in the south who are not supposed to approach even within speaking distance of the elect. A regular table has been drawn up of what may be called the degrees of pollution, so that, while some of these low persons can pollute a man of a higher caste only by actually touching him, it is held that blacksmiths, masons, carpenters and leather workers can pollute at a distance of twenty-four feet, toddy drawers at thirty-six feet and cultivators at forty-eight feet, while the pariahs, who eat beef, have a pollution range of no less than twenty-one yards and twelve inches.
"The more sacred a Hindoo is the more he is worried by his code of table etiquette. The very high caste Brahman ought to strip off all his clothes and, if possible, sit on the floor when he consumes his food. He should not eat anything which has been touched by an inferior or a non-Hindoo or drink water out of any vessel similarly defiled. As the scale descends the restrictions relax until at last we get down to the man of no standing whatever, the sweeper, who is so wanting in refinement that he can openly stroke a puppy dog, and finally we reach the outcast who can eat any kind of meat whenever he can get it and will even drink out of a cup which has touched other lips.
"Luckily for the modern Hindoo these burdensome prohibitions and injunctions are subject to certain convenient legal fictions. Sweetmeats, it appears, are not food and may be taken by anybody anywhere. Not long ago the Brahman pundits at Benares decided that soda water is not water within the meaning of the act, so to speak, and that ice does not count."—Chicago News.

Law is something for your neighbor to obey and for you to evade.
Some men regard swearing off as such a good thing that they take measures to do it frequently.

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are exactly akin to the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?
The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.
If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid, or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.
The best agents known to medical science for the cure of the above symptoms and conditions, as attested by the writings of leading teachers and practitioners of all the several schools of medical practice, have been skillfully and harmoniously combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent medical men of the age say of them.

One Nickel For Two Fares.
"Women are pretty magnanimous with each other," concluded the man who had thought they were not. "The other day a girl got on the car. She had a $5 bill. No change. She turned to the woman who sat next to her and said: 'Can you let me have change for this? I am in a hurry. I don't want to be put off.'"
"I haven't the change," replied the woman, "but here is a nickel."
"The girl demurred. 'Take it,' insisted the woman. 'It is only just. I have been riding for about a mile and a half and the conductor hasn't collected my fare yet. It is against my principles to force it upon him.'"—New York Press.

A Bad Recovery.
Scene: Registry office. Bridegroom (to registrar)—The first time I was married was in a church, the second time in a chapel, but I like this way best. It's so plain and simple, and I should come here if ever I got married again—(Catches sight of his bride and sees he has said the wrong thing.) That is, my dear, if ever I have the—er—misfortune to get married again, of course.—London Punch.

The Dust.
Rich Aunt—Why do you bring me this dust, Tommy? Tommy—Because I want you to bite it. Rich Aunt—Why do you want me to bite it? Tommy—Because I heard papa say that when you bite the dust we shall get £20,000.—London Tit-Bits.
