POETRY.

SABBATH EVENING.

BY GEORGE D. PRENTICE. Tis holy time. The evening shade, Steals with a soft control, O'er nature, as a thought from heaven Steals o'er the human soul ; And every ray from yonder blue, And every drop of falling dew, Seem to bring down to human woes, From heaven, in message of repose.

O'er yon tall rock the solemn trees, A shadowy group incline, Like gentle nuns in sorrow bowed Around their holy shrine; And o'er them now the night-winds blow So calm and still, the music low, Seems the mysterious voice of Prayer Soft-echoed on the evening air.

The mists, like incense from the earth, Rise to a God beloved;

And o'er the waters move as erst The Holy Spirit moved ;

The torrent's voice, the wave's low hymn, Seem the far notes of seraphim, And all earth's thousand voices raise Their song of worship, love and praise.

The gentle sisterhood of flowers, Bend low their lovely eyes, Or gaze through trembling tears of dew Up to the holy skies; And the pure stars come out above

Like sweet and blessed things of love, Bright signals in the eternal dome To guide the parted spirit home.

There is a spell of blessedness, In air, and earth, and heaven, And nature wears the blessed look Of a young saint, forgiven; Oh, who, at such an hour of love, Can gaze on all around, above, And not kneel down upon the sod With Nature's self, to worship God.

"Give me a kiss, my charming Sall," A lover said to a blue-eyed gal; "I won't," said she, " you lazy elf, Screw up your mouth and help yourself.

A HUNGRY JURY:

OR, THE DOUBTFUL CASE OF DAVID DU-BIOUS.

"Rogues must hang that Jurymen may dine."---POPE.

The public have doubtless heard of the fate of poor David Dubious, whose case was decided by a hungry jury .--But it may not be uninteresting to some of our readers to state a few of the particular circumstances attending that decision.

It was a case of life and death, but one doubtful and difficult to decide. The evidence was entirely circumstantial, and in many respects, contradictory. The prisoner, unfortunately, bore a very bad character, and many people did not hesitate to say that, "if he had not committed murder, he was none too good to do it." But what made his condition still more unfortunate, was the condition of the stomachs of the jury. They had been kept as neighbor standout says, and selfout all night, and it was now near the preservation is the first law of nature, hour of dining! Consider, then, the perilous condition of this poor prisoner, his life depending on such untoward circumstances -- presumptive evidence, a doubtful character, a hungry jury. He might have got over the two first, but wo to him whose life depends on the last .---A comfortably filled stomach is one of the gest guaranties for acts of justice. kindness, and charity. Trust a hun-gry jury with one's life! Never! Hunrer renders a man savage, and he who has a stomach to let, has seldom any bowels of compassion. In the case of David Dubious, seven of the jury were for hanging, and five for acquittal. Thus they had been for some time, without any prospect of thinking alike. Both sides were conscientious-both felt bound in honesty. and by their oath, to adhere to whatever they considered to be the true state of the case. Said those in favor of hanging : "The man is very evidently guilty, and we could answer neither to God nor to our country, should we consent to his acquittal." While those on the other side said—"We have serious doubts of his guilt; the evidence is circumstantial and extremely contra- starving. I can't get over my oath, dictory, and we could not answer it either to God or our conscience to take the poor fellow's life."

for their inability to think alike, and permptorily sent them back, declaring, with an awful shake of his wig, that they should neither eat nor drink until the case of the prisoner was decided. " Alas!" said one, "we must either agree on a verdict or agree to starve." "The latter we can never agree to," said another; " self preservation is the first law of nature. What time is it. neighbor ?" "It wants half an hour of dinner time.

"Only half an hour! We have but little time to spare. We must agree before dinner time, by some means or other. Its almost twenty-four hours since we have eaten a morsel, and to miss another meal would be absolute suicide."

Those who are in favor of hanging, are usually more fixed in their opinions than those on the other sidethus exactly reversing the only charitable maxim of criminal jurisprudence, to wit: That "it is better twenty guilty persons should escape, than that an innocent one should suffer. This was most unfortunately true, in the case of poor David Dubious.

"It would be a thousand pities," said one, "to hang an innocent man."

"That is very true," replied one of the opposite side; "but then you know it is better that twenty innocent persons should be hung, than that one guilty one should escape; so the maxim savs."

"Why, as to the maxim," says Jonathan Standout, "there may be something in that. But still I have been hitherto in favor of the acquittal of poor David, because I had by doubts about his being guilty. Howsomever all manner of doubts must vield to circumstances. So far as I can see, the evidence is by no means clear of the fellow's guilt. But then, on the other hand, who is he that twelve respectable men should starve for his life ? A fellow, at best, of doubtful reputation; a man who, if he is not guilty of this or some other murder, may very well be spared from the world."

"There is much truth in what you say," said Ichabod Avery ; "but then consider? how shall we answer to God and our consciences for the verdict ?"

"True," said Joseph Judgment, there's the rub. I acknowledge the prisoner to be of little or no value to the community, and as likely to be guilty of murder as the best of us .--But then, we are bound to decide according to evidence."

" And what," said Obadiah Lankley, is to become of our stomachs in the mean time? I'm as conscientious as any other man, I don't care who he is; and think I've proved it well, too, in standing out as long as I have. But all things must yield to circumstances,

We are all agreed now, except one, and I think he'll come over in time to dine. What say you, friend Avery, shall we hang the prisoner and go to dinner, or no ?"

"Why, indeed, gentlemen, I really don't know what to say. I see no satisfactory proof of the man's being guilty. Its a hard case, a confounded hard. Our dinner must be nearly ready; and something ought to be deter-mined on soon. Really, gentlemen, I think you had better agree to acquit him."

"Oh, we can't do that, positively," said another of the original seven. "A majority of us have been in favor of hanging from the first; and now all have come over except you; eleven against one.

"It wants but ten minutes of the dinner hour," said Obadiah Lankley. "Only ten minutes!" exclaimed Ichabod. "I've done, gentlemen, I've done. Oh my stomach! Let the man be hung."

"We are all agreed then," said the foreman. And a verdict of GUILTY was returned in time for DINNER.

OR-THE WIFES NIGHT. CAP. By "NIX IN DER VOODS.

Mr.----, who doesn't live more than mile from the post office in this city, met some "Northern friends with Southern principles," the other evening and in extending to them the hospitalities of the "Crescent City," visited so many of our princely Saloons and "Marble Halls," imbibing spiritual consolation as they journeyed, that when he left them at their hotel at the hour he felt that he had "a brick in his hat." Now he has a wife, an amiable, accomplished and beautiful lady, who loves him devotedly, and finds but one fault with him. That is his too frequent visits to the palaces where these "bricks are obtained.

After leaving his friend, Mr .--paused a moment, took, his bearing and having shaped a course, on the principle that continual angles meet, made sail for home. In due course of time he arrived there, and was not very much astonished, but rather frightened to find his worthy lady siting up for him.--She always does. She smiled when he came in. An eccentrick parson in the Old Domihins who is known by the somewhat unique name of Servant Jones, once dined with a Mr. Owl. Mr. Owl. placed before his guest the mortal remains of a chicken whose bones formed the debris of a former repast. The parson was called upon to ask a blessing, which he did in the following words:

"Lord of love, Look down from above, And bless the Owl. That ate the fowl And left the bones, For Servant Jones.
